Impressive Ceremonies At Point Pleasant, Ohio, This Morning, At General's Old Home.

GOVERNOR HARRIS MAKES SPEECH

Prominent Men And Relatives Of The Dead Soldier And Statesman Are Present At The Exercises.

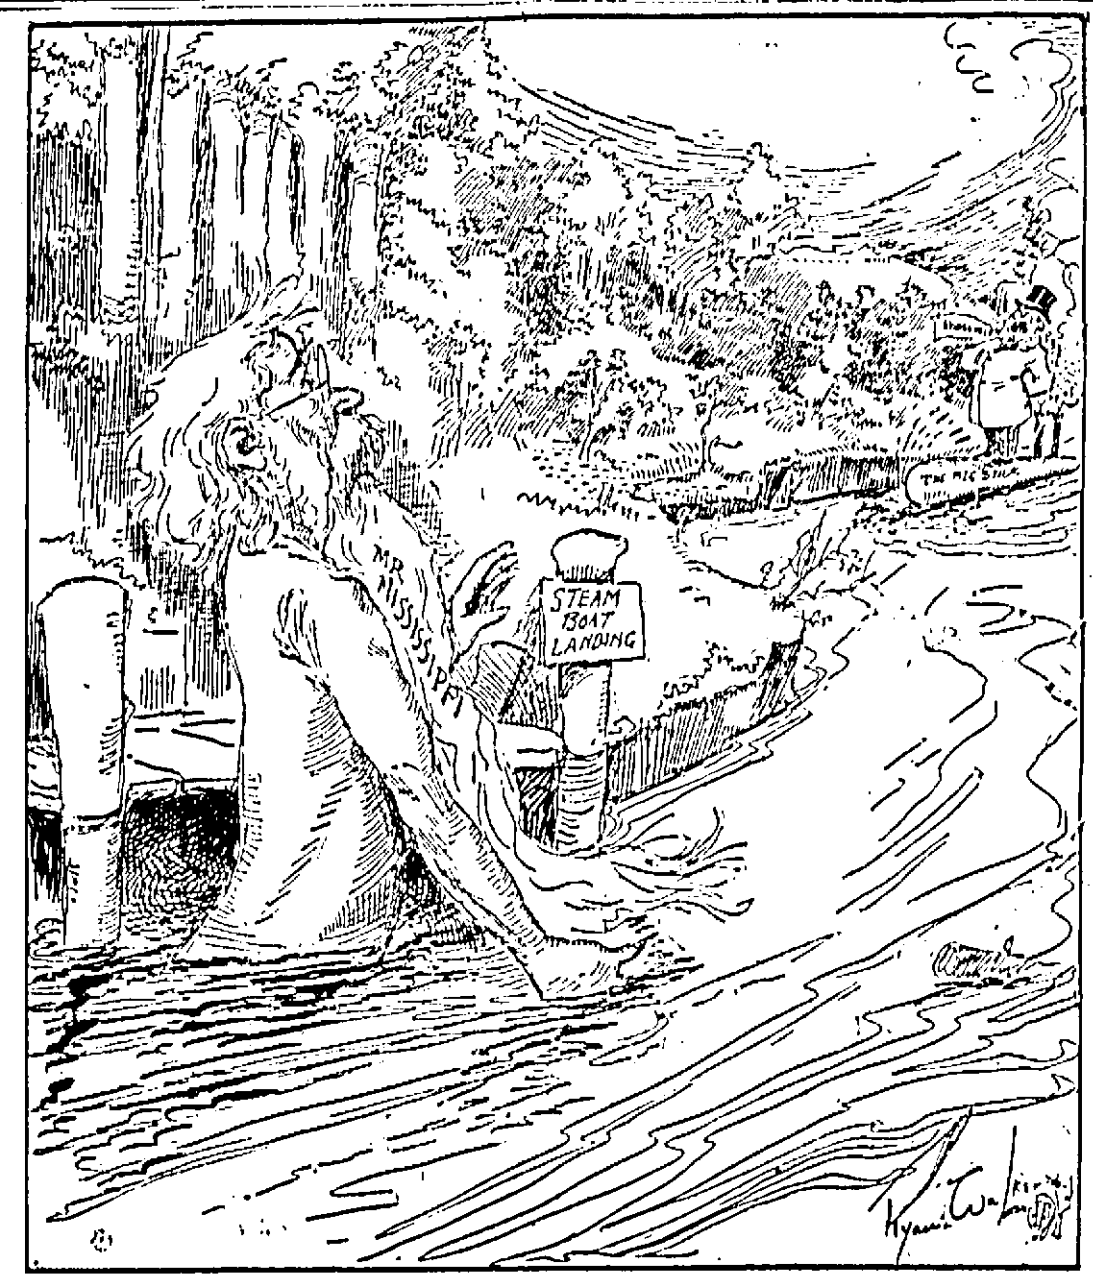

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Cincinnati, O., Oct. 2.—In the presence of a distinguished gathering, including Governor Harris, Gen. Henry C. C. Corbin, Gen. Fred D. Grant, a delegation of the Ohio Commandery of the Loyal Legion, relatives and old army associates, the bronze cannon and a memorial tablet placed over the exact spot where President Ulysses Simpson Grant was born, were unveiled today, at Point Pleasant, Clarendon county. The ceremony marked the beginning of the celebration of the centennial and home week of Clarendon county.

Governor Harris spoke as follows of the dead statesman and soldier: Like Washington and Lincoln, Grant grew up close to the great heart of nature. Manual labor was his lot from earliest childhood. He experienced the enervating influence of neither luxury nor poverty. He was a conspicuous example of what could be accomplished with the opportunities of his day and generation—a product of the social conditions prevailing in our state in its first half century.

Over the southern Ohio hills he followed the plow; in the primeval forests he swung the axe and drove the team; here he tended the flocks, cultivated the crops and helped to gather the harvests in; through the meadows, by the winding streams and under the open sky, with other barefoot boys, he wandered far on excursions of joy and freedom. Here he developed the traits of character that crowned his illustrious career. Duty called to other states and his ashes now rest in the metropolis of the republic, but by birth and nature, he was ours.

It was but natural, when this farmer lad had reached the hour of his supreme triumph, that he should wear his honors with becoming modesty, that he should be magnanimous toward a vanquished foe.

Ohio has long pointed with pride to her galaxy of illustrious sons. To the republic and the world she has furnished her quota of writers and inventors and orators and jurists, and statesmen and warriors. Today we honor him who stood first among the military chieftains of his time. To the humblest youth of our land his life is an inspiration.

PRESIDENT'S ST. LOUIS VISIT A UNIQUE INCIDENT

First Time President Ever Came To The City And Departed In A Steamboat—City Gorgeously Decorated.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 2.—For the first time within the memory of the present generation, a chief executive of the nation today arrived in the Mound city by steamboat and departed from the city in the same manner. President Theodore Roosevelt, on board the steamboat "Mississippi" from Keokuk, reached St. Louis shortly after nine o'clock this morning. Accompanying him on another craft were the members of the Inland Waterways commission and visiting governors.

The President found St. Louis awaiting his arrival in gala attire. Steamboats and other craft gayly bedecked with flags filled the river. Not since the palmy days before the war has St. Louis seen so many steamboats at one time. They came from Evansville, Cairo, Alton, Kansas City, Keokuk and other river points and brought delegations of business men and others desirous of impressing upon the president and the members of the waterways commission the importance of the river traffic and the urgent necessity for improvements in the Mississippi and its chief tributaries. As the president's boat came into sight it was greeted with deafening shrieks from the steamboat whistles, which were echoed by the cheers of the thousands of people who lined the river front and occupied positions of vantage on the wharves and on the two great bridges spanning the Mississippi here.

It was a distinguished assemblage that greeted the president when he landed near the foot of Locust street. Included among those present were the governors of more than twenty states, members of congress, the mayor and other representatives of the city of St. Louis and a reception committee of the Business Men's league, which had the general arrangements in charge.

After the exchange of courtesies the president and his party were taken in carriages to the Jai Alai building where he delivered his address. The route lay through Washington avenue, Twelfth street, Pine street, Grand avenue, Lindell boulevard and other leading thoroughfares. Flags were flying from every staff in the downtown district, and the city was bright with bunting. Pictures of President Roosevelt greeted the eye at every turn. Crowds lined the streets, anxious for a glimpse at the chief magistrate and his appearance was always the signal for tumultuous cheers.

After the exercises at the Jai Alai building the president was escorted to the Jefferson hotel, where he was entertained at luncheon. Covers were laid for four hundred and among the guests were the visiting governors and numerous other persons of note. From the hotel the presidential party proceeded at once to the wharf to embark on the Mississippi. The departure was the signal for another great river demonstration similar to that which had greeted the president's arrival in the morning. Scores of boats will accompany the president's boat down the river as far as Cairo, which is to be the next stopping point and which city will be reached according to schedule at nine o'clock tomorrow morning.

Cairo Plans Perfected.
Cairo, Ill., Oct. 2.—President Roosevelt will be in Cairo for two hours tomorrow morning, and extensive arrangements are being made for his reception. The business houses will be bedecked with flags and bunting, and a military company will lead a parade. The president will deliver a speech here which is expected to be one of the most important of his entire trip. At eleven o'clock he will resume his journey to Memphis.

PHONE POLE FELL WITH TWO LINEMEN

George Jones of Beloit and Harry Cox Had Narrow Escape From Serious Injuries Near Broadhead— Taylor-Ten Eyck Wedding.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Broadhead, Wis., Oct. 2.—George Jones of Beloit and Harry Cox of this city narrowly escaped terrible injuries and perhaps death in an accident which occurred near the T. W. Fleck farm on Jordan Prairie, four miles west of here, yesterday. They were at work near the peak of a 25-foot pole when it tipped over and fell with them, the crossarm happily breaking the force of the impact with the earth and preventing them from being crushed under the heavy mass. Jones was badly bruised, though no bones were broken, and required the attendance of a physician. Cox was not so badly hurt and was able to walk home.

HOUSE CLEANING REVEALS DIAMOND

Five-hundred-dollar Sparkler Discovered in Coat Pocket During House-cleaning Time.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Marshfield, Wis., Oct. 2.—Joseph Hafer, or rather his wife, has just recovered a diamond ring, worth $500, which he lost last Christmas.

House-cleaning stands vindicated. It turned the trick this time.

When the industrious Mrs. Hafer proceeded to set everything in the Hafer home upside-down, she also dusted the clothes she found in various places. Thorough to the most ultra-fashion, Mrs. Hafer turned inside-out all the pockets in the above-said clothes—such as have them.

And in doing it, she found the lost sparkler, resting in the little inside pocket of her foot and master's overcoat, who was no doubt merrily fanning like all husbands fanning during house-cleaning time.

EPISCOPAL TRIENNIAL COUNCIL IS OPENED

Notables of Church, Both Clergy and Laity, President J. Pierpont Morgan Prominent Figure.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Richmond, Va., Oct. 2.—An imposing religious service marked the opening of the triennial council of the Episcopal church in the United States. Within the walls of Holy Trinity church, the leading Episcopal parish of Virginia, were assembled the greatest minds of the clergy and laity of this powerful denomination. The bishops or fathers of the church, were there in greater number than at any previous council. The clergy were represented by theologians of eminence and orators of renown, the laity by financiers whose influence is international; lawyers than whom there are none more able, and men of other professions who have reached the top round of the ladder of fame. It was a distinguished gathering of distinguished men, one eminently representative of the wealthiest religious body of the American continent. Admission to the service was strictly by ticket, and when the delegates had been provided for, little room remained for the lay representatives of the church, although these would have been present in thousands had space permitted.

The service opened at eleven o'clock and was preceded by a procession of several scores of bishops, all robed in their canonicals. Those occupied the chancel, within the railing of which not a single priest or layman was permitted. The service, which did not differ from the regular morning service of the denomination, was fully clerical and was followed by the triennial sermon. This afternoon the house of deputies was formally organized and preparations completed for taking up the regular business of the council.

REAL FAIR HAS BEEN DISCUSSED

COMPANY MAY BE FORMED TO HANDLE THE MATTER.

THE PROJECT IS FEASIBLE

Race Meet in July, Auto Races in August, Fair in September—Base Ball and Other Sports The Year Round.

Interest in Janesville's holding a fair each year is growing. While many prominent citizens have called at the Gazette office to talk the matter over and promise support, few have wished to enter into a newspaper discussion of the project. The consensus of opinion is that Janesville wants a yearly fair and the only difficulty now is how to get it. The merchants of the city favor any means that will bring it about and advise from several rural communities show that the farmers would encourage a fair both with exhibits and patronage.

Is Taking Form.
A plan of forming a stock company, of holding the old fair grounds, and holding a county fair next fall, is rapidly taking shape. Several informal meetings have been held by gentlemen interested in the plan and it is probable that definite action will be taken this week or next. It is not too early to enter the field and now while everyone is talking the matter is the time to form the company.

One of the Plans.
One of the plans discussed is to organize a stock company, say, the name Janesville Racing and Fair association, rent the grounds, repair the fences, raise the grandstand and erect new bleachers and stalls for horses and cattle, and give the grounds ample fire protection by good, large service pipes and in every way put the grounds in good shape.

Hold Race Meet.
A trotting and pacing meet could be held in July which would bring in some capital for the fair, that would be held the first week of September. It would also not be a good advertisement for the fair. In August an automobile racing meet could be held and if properly advertised, would draw crowds from all the surrounding cities where autos are owned. During the early spring and summer ball games could be played in the park and in the fall football games could be scheduled if desired. In fact, it is thought the park would be a source of revenue the entire year.

The Fair Itself.
The fair itself could be so arranged that it would come just before the state fair in Milwaukee and many exhibitors who were going to the state fair might be induced to stop over here, especially if they come from a long distance and want to break their long travel by cars. Rock county always takes a good share of the exhibits in livestock and other exhibits at Milwaukee, and they would certainly exhibit here before going to the state fair.

Not County Fair.
It would not be necessary to call the fair the Rock county fair, or in any way interfere with the Evansville fair. Different dates could be arranged for and the same exhibits go to both fairs. The same horses could be easily handled in the two fairs and if close enough together, as to dates, it would help both fairs. Janesville being in the geographical center of the county, with the interurban and two lines of railroads with their many divisions centering here, could draw large crowds here for the event.

Another Idea.
Another idea suggested by the gentlemen who have talked the matter over was to hold a "Home Coming" at the same time as the fair. Have the fair program during the day and early afternoon and the "Home Coming" in the evening. "Home Coming" if properly managed are a source of much pleasure to the former residents and they come from long distances. In advertising the "Home Coming" the fair could be handled as well.

Plan Monies Time.
Janesville has so long been noted as an enterprising that the fame of its celebrations would bring crowds from all parts of the state. Instead of holding a Fourth of July celebration next year, the idea suggested is to have a "Home Coming" in the fall. Have the features of the Fourth of July at that time and also the fair. It has also been suggested that an automobile hill climbing contest could also be held at this time and Janesville has several hills that would prove good places for such a contest.

The Details.
The foregoing ideas have merely been talked of. The details of the organization which would make such plans possible have not been worked out. It has been said that with a nucleus in the city and good representation in each township, men who would take an active part in the management. It could be carried out. Meanwhile the Gazette continues its effort to open its columns for communications and suggestions on the subject.

POSTPONEMENT DUE TO MUDDY ROADS

Members of the Council Will Not Visit Road at Clinton Today as Planned.

Owing to the muddy roads making travel by auto almost an impossibility, and fraught with much danger to the occupants of the machines, the trip by the members of the council to Clinton for the purpose of visiting the United States government engineers, has been postponed. It is not probable that the trip will be taken at all unless word is received that the work has not been completed and the machinery is still there. The party were to have gone this afternoon and to have returned this evening.

HEARD A KNOCKING ON CELLAR DOOR

Mrs. W. A. Douglas Given Bad Scare by Victim of Delirium Tremens Who Had Spent Night in Basement.

Overtaken by the delirium which followed upon a protracted spree, Michael McDonald, a man of unknown antecedents who is supposed to have been employed in the new railroad yards, found refuge Monday evening in the basement under the home of William A. Douglas, located on Center street. Yesterday morning Mrs. Douglas accompanied her children part way to school. When she returned home she was frightened by a terrible pounding on the trap door leading into the cellar. Upon her slipping the lock, the lid flew open and a wild-eyed fellow framed in yellow hair shot up through the opening. Uttering wild and unintelligible words the apparition clambered out, made for a door, and was soon sprinting for the woods. Mrs. Douglas ran to a neighbor's home and telephoned for the police. Officers Champion and Mason drove to the scene with the patrol wagon and after a little skirmishing located the man in a bit of woodland. All day and nearly all night McDonald fought off the demons and other evil creatures of his disordered imagination but his condition had improved somewhat today.

LEADING 1907 BATTERY

Mordecai Brown and Johnny Kling, Chicago Nationals.

CATCHER WHO GETS $4,000.

The Three Fingers Twirler Was Terror of His League—Kling Runs Billiard Room—Rochester a Noted City For Exportation of Umpires.

Whenever the 1907 victory of the Chicago Nationals in the pennant race is mentioned three men invariably are discussed. They are Captain Frank Chance and the members of the club's stellar battery, Pitcher Mordecai Brown and Johnny Kling.

It means a great deal for two men to comprise the ablest battery of a season in the major leagues. To Brown and Kling belongs the distinction. It must be agreed. Brown is the man most feared by Chicago's rivals. His three fingered salary wing his spread as much terror as a French revolution, as much desolation and heartrending as a battle of Gettysburg.

Kling is one of the quietest players in the game. He is a good balance on that account for such terrors and umpire batters as Jimmy Sheekard, Harry Steinfield and Captain Chance himself. Because of his retiring disposition Kling is one of the most popular men in the game today. In winter he runs a billiard academy in Kansas City, where he makes as much money as he does on the diamond. As a matter of fact, Kling is tired of baseball, and he wants to break away from the game. He would do so if the financial returns were not very high.

Last spring, for instance, Johnny refused to report for practice or to sign any old kind of a contract.

President Murphy of the Cubs offered him $3,000 to return, but he replied: "Kansas City for mine. The billiard game is good enough for me."

Then in despite Murphy raised the bid to $4,000 a year. Nothing was then heard from Kling until the day, a week later, he appeared at the team's headquarters ready for work and for the little formality of signing a contract.

Did Johnny bluff Murphy? Ask of the wild geese that southward fly in the autumn, worthy stranger.

Rochester, N. Y., enjoys the unique distinction of supplying the baseball world with more able umpires than any other city, county or state in this country. For proof of this assertion just scan the appended list of notable handless of national reputation who have been or are still in evidence:

Active List—Francis (Bills) O'Loughlin, American league; William Kling, National league; William Carpenter, National league; William Sullivan, Eastern league; William Buckley, South Atlantic league; William Callahan, Empire State league; William D. Sheller, Empire State league;

JOHNNY KLING, STAR CATCHER.

Daniel Fitzsimmons, Cotton States league; Charles Bruecher, Empire State league; Daniel Prentinger, Southern league; Maurice P. Dooly, Northern Copper league; Joseph Fourteen, Wisconsin league.

Deceased—George E. Wetmore, National league.

The question naturally arises, What is there about Rochester that should make it so prolific in developing the umpires and so sterile in the production of good ball players?

Several minor league presidents are under fire from club owners who attribute the disappointing showing of their respective teams to alleged incompetency of umpires for whose engagement and retention the executive is responsible.

THE ROUNDUP COLUMN.

Why Willie West "Hotfooted" Out of Goldfield—A Baseball Narration.

During my vacation I dropped off at Goldfield, Nev., to see the sights, but speedily vanished when I found an eastern ex-prize fight manager exploiting mines and incidentally mining stock. This particular wise boy was an old acquaintance of mine from New York. How he got into the mining game I don't know. But I know I simply couldn't stay in the town without "piping off" the kid's peculiar financial propensities, so I thought the wisest move was to keep quiet and "grab a rattler" and leave Goldfield to his tender mercies. I didn't want to be the first occupant of the "Goldfield Graveyard For Reformers." Of course this was a very cowardly procedure, but the stranger who protects himself with a gun in Goldfield is, I am told, fined anywhere from $500 to $1,000 in real coin.

Like the Irishman, "I'd rather be a live coward than a dead hero for the rest of my life."

I hope the kid's mining stock is better than some of the prize fights he has been connected with.

A big race in France was recently won by a horse named Thoughtful 14th. That is the kind of a liar that usually does win.

Jimmy Britt left his referees home very carelessly, so he lost his fight with Gans. Also the fight was "on the level." Is that another reason why Johnnies didn't win?

Query—When is a modern fight not a fake?
Answer—When there is no fight.

Of course there can be no fake without a fight. And of course some fighters can't fight without faking.

When Buck Ewing was managing the New York team he hired a young twirler who had met with much success in the sunny south. His name was Clark, and he was without doubt the greatest half dime novel reader that ever played baseball. This fellow Clark was not by any means a great student, and there may have been some truth in the report that it hurt him to think.

At any rate, between his attention to the hard literature that thrills the ANSON HANDED CLARK A TICKET HOME, youth of the land and his shyness in grasping the pitching situation in the major league he soon won for himself the can that is built of tin.

When Ewing told him it would be farewell and penitence goodly for his, Clark, with a sad, sweet smile, which was no doubt a facial expression acquired from some one of the horses who paraded in the highly intellectual matter he was so fond of reading, said to Ewing:

"It seems, then, Mr. Ewing, that I have missed my destiny."
"You've missed that, all right," grimly replied Buck, "but I'll see that you do not miss your destination," he added as he gave Clark a ticket to his sunny southern home.

With Tommy Burns taking care of the invasion, what's the use of a fleet in the Pacific?

Billy Nolan weeping at the pier of his meat ticket was one of the sad results of the Britt-Nelson contest.

Writers of reform articles in the monthly magazines are handing it to those who play the ponies. From personal observation we should say that the players get it handed to them hard enough without magazine criticism.

Fred Tenney of Boston played Sunday baseball for the first time in twenty years recently. The way he hit the ball shows that a conscience has no direct connection with a batting average.

An English correspondent of a New York paper says Americans are butting in too much on sports that were made solely for the sons of Britain. He means that we have defeated said sons too often at their own game; hence the bother.

A well known horseman of the east remarked recently that critics of form on the eastern tracks didn't understand a horse's disposition. Maybe he's right. It's hard to give a psychological reason for long odds serving as a stimulus and favoring a deterrent to speed.

S.S.S. HEALS OLD SORES

An old sore or ulcer is only a symptom, an outlet for the impurities and poisons which are in the blood, and as long as this vital fluid remains in this impure, contaminated state the place will never heal. The application of salves, washes, powders, etc., may cause the spot to scab over, but a fresh outpouring of diseased matter from the blood starts it again, and thus it goes on, gradually growing worse and slowly affecting the entire health of the sufferer. There are many ways in which the blood becomes contaminated and poisoned. A long spell of sickness breeds disease germs in the system, the failure of the eliminative members to remove the refuse and waste matter of the body, the excessive use of mineral medicines in certain diseases, all infect the blood with morbid matter and germs which sooner or later is manifested by a sore that refuses to heal. Persons with inherited blood taint are very apt to be afflicted with sores and ulcers. The taint may lie dormant during young, vigorous life, but when middle age is reached or passed and the natural energies begin to grow weaker, the tissues in some weak point break down and a chronic sore is formed and kept open by the constant drainage of impure matter from the blood. If the cause is not removed the sore will continue to grow worse by eating deeper into the flesh, festering, discharging, and slowly undermining the constitution. S. S. S. heals old sores by going down to the very bottom of the trouble, driving out the impurities and building up the entire circulation. When S. S. S. has removed the cause the blood becomes rich and healthy, the sore begins to heal, new flesh is formed, and soon the place is cured. Do not depend on external applications, which do not reach the blood, but begin the use of S. S. S. and remove of the cause, and then the sore must heal. 50 % ALCOHOL IN WHISKEY

There It Is! — Take Your Choice!

Whiskey contains 50% alcohol—Brandy 55%—Rum 52 1/4%—Gin 40%—Wine 15%—whereas a Pure Malt Beer brewed by the celebrated GUND NATURAL PROCESS—like contains only 3 1/2% alcohol—just enough to gently aid and promote healthy digestion. Hence prominent physicians recommend it as a splendid tonic, full of substantial food elements and at the same time a perfect temperance beverage. Peerless Beer is full of snap and sparkle—tastes delicious and has all the charming tang and aroma of hops and harvest fields.

Gund's Peerless Beer

The commanding superiority of Gund's Peerless Beer asserted itself by winning the Highest Merit at Paris, 1900 and Gold Medal at St. Louis Exposition, 1904.

CHAPTER XV.

"DON'T wish to talk of Miss Norman," said Paul bluntly. "Then you can be no true lover," retorted the widow. "I disagree with you. A true lover does not talk to all and sundry concerning the most sacred feelings of his heart. Moreover, your remarks at our last meeting were not to my taste." "I apologize," said Mrs. Krill promptly, "and will not offend in that way again. I did not know you then, but since Mr. Hay has spoken about you to me I know and appreciate you, Mr. Deceit."

But Paul was not to be cajoled in this manner. The more since the woman was the more he felt inclined to be on his guard, and he very wisely obeyed the prompting of his instinct. "I fear you do not know me, Mrs. Krill," said he as calmly as he could have spoken, "so you would hardly ask me to discuss with you, of all people, the lady whom I intend to make my wife."

"You are rather a difficult man to deal with," she replied, drawing her thick white eyebrows together. "But I like difficult men. That is why I admire Mr. Hay. He is not a silly, useless butterfly like that young lord there."

"Silly he is not, but I doubt his being useful. So far as I can see, Hay looks after himself and nobody else." "He proposes to look after my daughter," said Mrs. Krill. "No, I understand," replied Deceit politely, "but that is a matter entirely for your own consideration." Mrs. Krill still continued to smile in her placid way, but she was rather nonplussed all the same. From the appearance of Deceit, she had argued that he was one of those many men who could twist round her finger. But he seemed to be less easily gulled than she expected, and for the moment she was silent, letting her hard eyes wander toward the card table, round which sat the four playing an eager and unceasing game of bridge. "You don't approve of that, perhaps?" "No," said Paul calmly; "I certainly do not."

"Are you a Puritan, may I ask?" Deceit shook his head and laughed. "I am a simple man who tries to do his duty in this world," said he, "and who very often finds it difficult to do that same duty."

"How do you define duty, Mr. Deceit?" "We are becoming ethical," said Paul, with a smile. "I don't know that I am prepared with an answer at present."

"Then the next time we meet, for I hope," said Mrs. Krill, smoothing her face to a smile—it had grown rather somber—"that we shall often meet again. You must come and see us. We have taken a house in Kensington."

"Chosen by Mr. Hay?"

"Yes, he is our mentor in London society. I don't think," added Mrs. Krill, studying his face, "that you like Mr. Hay."

"As I am Mr. Hay's guest," said Paul dryly, "that is rather an unkind question to ask."

"I asked no question. I simply make a statement."

Deceit found the conversation rather embarrassing. In place of his pumping Mrs. Krill, she was trying to pump him, which reversal of his design he by no means approved of. He changed the subject of conversation by drawing a powerfully attractive red herring across the table. "You wish to speak to me about Miss Norman," he remarked.

"I do," answered Mrs. Krill, who saw through his design, "but apparently that subject is as distasteful as a discuss about Mr. Hay.

"Both subjects are rather personal, I admit, Mrs. Krill. However, if you have anything to tell me which you would like Miss Norman to hear I am willing to listen."

"Ah! Now you are more reasonable," she answered in a pleased tone. "It is simply this, Mr. Deceit: I am very sorry for the girl. Through no fault of her own she is placed in a difficult position. I cannot give her a name, since her father shined against her as he shined in another way against me, but I can, through my daughter, who is guided by me, give her an income. It does not seem right that I should have all this money."

"That your daughter should have all this money," interpolated Deceit.

"My daughter and I are one," replied Mrs. Krill calmly. "When I speak for myself I speak for her. But, as I say, it doesn't seem right to me that I should have all this money and she should be in poverty. So I propose to allow her five hundred a year on conditions. Will she accept, do you think, Mr. Deceit?"

"I should think her acceptance would depend upon the conditions."

"They are very simple," said Mrs. Krill in her deep tones and looking very straight at Paul. "She is to marry you and go to America."

Deceit's face did not change, since her hard eyes were on it. But he was puzzled under his mask of indifference. Why did this woman want Sylvia to marry him and go into exile? He temporized. "With regard to your wish that Miss Norman should marry me," said he quietly, "it is of course very good of you to interest yourself in the matter. I fail to understand your reason, however."

"The reason is patent," rejoined Mrs. Krill, just as quietly and quite as watchful as before. "Sylvia Norman is a young girl without much character."

"In that I disagree with you," said Deceit. "Well, let us admit she has character, but she certainly has no experience. In the world she is exposed to much trouble and perhaps maybe to temptation. Since her position is the fault of her father and she is entirely innocent I want her to have a happy life. For that reason I wish her to marry you."

Paul bowed, not believing a word of this philanthropic speech. "Again I say it is good of you," said he, with some irony, "but even were I out of the way her nurse, Deborah Tawney, would look after her. As matters stand, however, she will certainly become my wife as soon as we can afford a home."

"You can afford it tomorrow," said Mrs. Krill eagerly, "if you will accept my offer."

"A home in America," said Paul. "And why?"

"I should think both of you would like to be away from a place where you have seen such a tragedy."

"Indeed," Paul committed himself to no opinion. "And supposing we accept your offer, which I admit is a generous one, you suggest we should go to the States?"

"Or to Canada or Australia or, in fact, you can go anywhere so long as you leave England. I tell you, Mr. Deceit, even at the risk of hurting your feelings, that I want that girl away from London. My husband treated me very badly—he was a brute always—and I hate to have that girl before my eyes."

"Have I not said that a dozen times?" rejoined Mrs. Krill impatiently. "What is the use of further discussion? Do you accept my offer?"

"I will convey it to Miss Norman. It is for her to decide."

"But you have the right since you are to be her husband."

"Prison me, no. I would never take such a responsibility on me. I shall tell Miss Norman what you say and convey her answer to you."

"Thank you," said Mrs. Krill graciously. But she was annoyed that her golden bait had not been taken immediately, and in spite of her snivel Paul could see that she was annoyed, the more so when she began to explain, "of course you understand my feelings."

"I confess I don't quite. Naturally the fact that you are connected with the murder in the public eye."

"Pardon me," said the woman swiftly, "but I am not. The name of Krill has hardly been noticed. The public know that Anton Norman was murdered. No one talks of Lemuel Krill or thinks that I am the widow of the murdered man. Possibly I may come across some people who will connect the two names and look askance at me, but the majority of people—such as Lord George there—she pointed with her fan—do not think of me in the way you say. As he did, they will think they remember the name."

"Did Lord George say that to you?" said Paul swiftly.

"No. But he did to Mr. Hay, who told me," rejoined Mrs. Krill quite as swiftly.

"To-night?" asked Deceit, remembering that Hay had not spoken privately to Mrs. Krill since they came in from the dining room.

"Oh, no—on another occasion. Lord George has several times said that he has a faint recollection of my name. Possibly the connection between me and the murder may occur to his mind, but he is really so very stupid that I hope he will forget all about the matter."

"Stowley?" echoed Mrs. Krill, gave it to my mother, who sent it to me. When I had an accident I lost it, but who picked it up I can't say."

MANY PAPER CLIPS

STENOGRAPHER HAD CHANGE FOR EXTENSIVE COLLECTION.

Odd and Intricate Forms of Bent Wire That Are Supposed to Be of Use to the Busy Writer.

"You wouldn't mind me keeping this, would you?" A stenographer was looking up into the face of a lawyer. She held before her a little wire paper clip, and smiled as she spoke. The lawyer seemed half surprised.

Why, no, my dear—or I beg your pardon—madam, he said; "certainly I have no objections to your keeping it. It is such a trivial thing. But I wonder, why?"

"Well, you see," the stenographer said, "I'm making a collection of these things."

"I started about two weeks ago and I believe there are 57 varieties—not the picky kind, either. Every time I get a new one I drop it into this little box. I have a clip, a double clip, a clipper clip and a rickclip. I have a cross and a double cross and enough other kinds to form a clip menagerie. Wonderful where all these folk things come from!"

"Some of them are as intricate as a Chinese puzzle and as obstinate as a Missouri mule. You have to worry along and tease with them, coax and wheedle, put them on the back as if they were bally animals. Every time a man gets a piece of wire twisted into some awkward shape he gets a patent of it and sells it as a paper clip."

"I'm for the good old-fashioned Magill fastener. It's as old as the Rock of Gibraltar."

"The bulk of the paper clips are made in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. Most of them are made of steel wire, flexible, yet sufficiently rigid to hold papers firmly. A very few are made of soft brass. The cost of manufacture is trivial. There is an indication, however, of the grasp of a publican platform and a heap more satisfactory. Made of soft brass, easily bent, and when it is put in its stays there come one little bit. This is the first fastener patented. A man named Magill made it. It was the only clip in use for years."

She held up the old fastener made of brass with a round, flat head, and two sharp points to go through the paper. She fished down into the little box and showed a number, which she called "reelion breakers." Explaining, she said, "They'd make anyone swear."

"I have heard that."

"You would have seen an example in Lemuel," she retorted. "When he drank brandy, he became a king, a sultan. From being timid he became bold; from not harming any one he was capable of murder. Often in his fits did he lay violent hands on me. But I managed to escape. When sober he would mean and apologize in a provokingly fearful manner. I hated and despised him," she went on, with flashing eyes, but careful to keep her voice from reaching the gambler's. "I was a fool to marry him. My father was a farmer, and I had a good education. I was attracted by the good looks of Lemuel and ran away with him from my father's farm in Buckinghamshire."

"That's where Stowley is," murmured Paul.

"Stowley?" echoed Mrs. Krill, whose ears were very sharp. "Yes, I know that town. Why do you mention it?"

"The opal serpent brooch with which your husband's lips were fastened was pawned there."

"I remember," said Mrs. Krill calmly. "Mr. Paul told me. It has never been found out how the brooch came to fasten the lips—so horrible it was!" She shuddered.

"No, My father bought the brooch from the Stowley pawnbroker and

Two Marvels of Surgery. The story of a girl who has a finger tip for a nose, and of a man, who has a finger-nail growing out of his nose was related recently by Dr. J. M. T. Finney, at a meeting of the Southern Surgical and Gynecological society, held at Baltimore.

Dr. Finney explained how he grafted the girl's little finger on her face where her nose should have been, and then amputated it. The patient is now a very presentable-looking child. The surgeon then described a similar operation performed on a baseball player. After the man's finger had been transplanted to his face, it was discovered that a bit of the finger-nail had not been removed, and as it persisted in growing the poor man is obliged to have his nasal nail pulled at regular intervals.

Sad Funeral Procession. A Paris correspondent records a touching scene, in which an ugly, ill-kept, nondescript dog was the principal actor. Behind the hearse of a funeral procession recently, which was of the poorest description, walked the only mourner, three women weeping bitterly under their long crapes, and an old man with tears falling upon his grey beard. That was all. No carriages, no friends other than the mournful dog, followed the dead to his last resting-place. The rain fell in torrents. Trotting in the mud and close beside the wheels of the hearse was the dog. Every now and then he would spring upon the step, and, clambering on to the dismal pall which covered the coffin, crouch close beside it.

SEEK TO PRESERVE RIGHTS OF STATE

ATTORNEYS GENERAL ADOPT A MEMORIAL TO CONGRESS.

TO STOP INTERFERENCE.

Ask Law Checking Federal Courts—
Committee Named to Draft Scheme of Anti-Trust Litigation.

St. Louis, Oct. 2.—Action that will have a far reaching effect in anti-trust and corporation litigation and which will bear fruit in almost every state in the union was taken by the convention of attorneys general in its final session here Tuesday. A committee was appointed to draft a scheme of anti-trust legislation to be sent to all attorneys general, and as a climax for the entire meeting the attorneys general assembled adopted a resolution which is expected to remove a thorn in the flesh of the state officers, the interference by federal circuit courts with the operation of state laws.

Permanent organization was also effected, under the name of the "National Association of Attorneys General of the United States," and a united front will be presented in legal actions brought by the different states against the same corporation or trust.

The resolution is in the shape of a memorial to congress and was framed by the committee composed of Attorneys General E. T. Young, of Minnesota; Dana Malone, of Massachusetts; A. M. Garber, of Alabama; W. T. Thompson, of Nebraska; W. H. Dickson, of Colorado, and H. S. Hadley, of Missouri.

Text of the Memorial.

The memorial is as follows:
"Whereas, the efficient administration as well as the preservation of our dual system of government requires that each sovereignty be permitted to exercise its function as defined by the federal constitution unhampered by the other; therefore be it.

"Resolved, by the convention of attorneys general of the several states here assembled, that we earnestly recommend to the favorable consideration of the president and the congress of the United States the enactment of a federal law providing that no circuit court of the United States, or any judge exercising powers of such circuit courts, shall have jurisdiction in any case brought to restrain any officers of a state or any administrative board of a state from instituting in a state court any suit or other appropriate proceeding to enforce the laws of such state or to enforce any order made by such administrative board; but allowing any person or corporation asserting in any such action in a state court any right arising under the constitution or any laws of the United States to have the decision of the highest court of such state reviewed by the supreme court of the United States as now provided by law.

"We also recommend that suits in federal circuit courts by persons interested in corporations to restrain such corporations from obeying the laws of states in which they are doing business be prohibited."

Officers Are Elected.
On recommendation of the committee on organization the following were chosen as officers: President, H. S. Hadley, of Missouri; vice president, Dana Malone, of Massachusetts; secretary and treasurer, William H. Dickson, of Colorado.

Attorney General Dickson, of Colorado, asked that the next convention be held in Denver, but it was finally decided to leave the matter to the executive committee.

NEW TANGLE IN TRACTION

STARTLING CHARGES MADE BY
NEW YORK OFFICIAL.

Attorney General Jackson Attacks
Gotham's Street Car Companies—
Allegations Hinting at Fraud.

New York, Oct. 2.—Startling charges of extravagance and neglectful management, or, if not that, failure to account for millions of dollars are made by Attorney General Jackson in a petition filed Tuesday calling for the appointment of receivers for the New York City Railway company and the Metropolitan Street Railway company, and also demanding the dissolution of the New York City Railway company.

The application for receivers was made to Justice Ford of the supreme court, who issued an order for the defendants to appear in court on October 3, and answer to the complaint. The attorney general's action further complicates a situation already considerably entangled by reason of the various interrelated corporations which control and operate the traction lines on Manhattan Island. Adrian H. Joline and Douglass Robinson were appointed receivers for the New York City Railway company, by Judge Lacombe in the district court several days ago and Tuesday the same receivers were named in the same court, on application of the company's attorneys, to act for the Metropolitan Street Railway company.

The allegations hinting at fraud are made in connection with the company's construction account, the most sensational being that a charge of $500,000 per mile was made for rebuilding certain surface lines.

Attorney General Jackson alleges that the appointment of receivers for the New York City Railway company by Judge Lacombe in the United States circuit court was illegal.

The defendants named are Daniel H. Hasbrouck, DeClifford Moorehead, Herbert H. Vreeland, Richard W. Meade, Robert A. C. Smith, Charles E. Warren, William Falmestock, Solomon Guggenheim, Ralph L. Anderson, Jr., and the Metropolitan Street Railway company.

SIX SOLONS ARE INDICTED.

Accused of Soliciting Positions in Public Service Corporations.

Boston, Oct. 2.—In the belief that the statute passed by the legislature of 1903, forbidding the soliciting of positions in public service corporations by public officials has been violated, the Suffolk county grand jury has indicted two state senators, two members of the legislature and two aldermen of this city. Those indicted are: Senator E. J. Bromberg, of West Roxbury; Senator S. J. McLeod, of Cambridge; Representative D. J. McDonald, of Charlestown, former representative P. J. Doherty, of this city; Alderman James M. Curley; Alderman John E. Baldwin.

It is charged that these men solicited positions from the New England Telephone & Telegraph company. All of them but Bromberg pleaded not guilty when arraigned, and were released on $1,000 bail each.

Baker City, Ore., Oct. 2.—Harvey K. Brown, ex-sheriff of Baker county, died Tuesday afternoon at the hospital as the result of the horrible wounds he received from the explosion of a bomb at his front gate as he entered his home Monday night.

Shortly before noon Mr. Brown recovered consciousness and his antedemortem statement was taken by the district attorney. It follows:

"I was on my way home from up-town last night when I met a man in front of a residence which is a block from my house and spoke. The man made no reply. This man was about five feet ten inches tall, his weight was 165 pounds. He wore a brown suit and a celluloid collar and was clean shaven. I have been conscious of having been followed for the past three weeks and I have no doubt that those who attempted my life are persons connected with the Western Federation of Miners, and that I was marked for death on account of connection of the Steunenberg and Steve Adams cases."

Illinois Sheriffs Convene.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 2.—At a convention called to form a state association of the sheriffs and deputy sheriffs of Illinois, held in this city Tuesday, Charles W. YOKOHAMA HONORS MR. AND MRS. TAFT

BRILLIANT RECEPTION AT THE AMERICAN CONSULATE.

WELCOMED BY THE MAYOR.

City Presents the Visitors with Silver Tea Service—Minister Hayashi Entertains Taft
at Tokio.

Yokohama, Oct. 2.—Secretary and Mrs. Taft were the guests of honor at a brilliant reception at the American consulate here Tuesday afternoon under the auspices of the Asiatic association. Features of the entertainment were the presentation of a silver tea service to Mrs. Taft from the city of Yokohama, and the exchange of significant and friendly speeches between Secretary Taft and prominent Japanese.

The entire city council, headed by the mayor of Yokohama, was present, as were the governor of Sufa, the members of the prefectural municipal assemblies and a number of representatives of the diplomatic corps at Tokio and the consular corps here. The ladies came in after the informal levee.

Mr. Smith, president of the Asiatic association, welcomed Secretary Taft and introduced him to the mayor of Yokohama, who, in excellent English, assured the secretary of Japanese friendship. The mayor then presented the tea service to Mrs. Taft.

Mr. and Mrs. Taft later returned to Tokio.

Entertained by Hayaishi.

Tokio, Oct. 2.—Foreign Minister Hayaishi gave a reception and luncheon Tuesday in honor of Secretary Taft at the Koshikawa Koryuikan arsenal. All the officials of the government departments were present. The affair brought together a notable gathering of Japanese officers who gained renown in the recent war, and other prominent leaders. Sharing the food of the table with Mr. Taft was Field Marshal Prince Oyama.

The toast to President Roosevelt elicited great applause, and in reply Secretary Taft proposed the health of the emperor of Japan, saying that this great monarch showed remarkable ability in selecting his aides to carry on the affairs of the nation.

"LITTLE BLACK BOOK" PROBE

FEDERAL GRAND JURY AT MIN-NEAPOLIS BEGINS INQUIRY.

Lumbermen Accused of Scheme to Badger Certain Listed Firms—
Fifty Witnesses Subpoenaed.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 2.—Several Minneapolis and Chicago firms engaged in the mail-order business of cash, doors and blinds expert to fasten on Minneapolis lumbermen the blame of publishing and distributing the "Little Black Book."

They hope to show the connection of these men with the Lumbermen's association. The investigation was begun before the federal grand jury in Minneapolis Tuesday. These firms contend that the distribution of the "Little Black Book" was part of the scheme in a conspiracy to defraud by the use of the mails. The fraud, they say, consisted in the instructions in the book, that the recipient carry on a correspondence with certain listed firms, causing annoyance and cost, but transacting no business with them.

Fifty witnesses from Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Iowa have been subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury during this session. Many of these witnesses, it is said, are men in the lumber business, or persons who have received copies of the booklets, with the list of firms to be "badgered."

ROOT IS RECEIVED BY DIAZ.

Secretary of State Cordially Greeted by Mexican President.

Mexico City, Oct. 2.—With all the members of the Mexican cabinet present, President Diaz received Secretary Root at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning in the Hall of Ambassadors in the national palace.

The meeting between the two statesmen was most cordial. Mr. Root, who was presented to President Diaz by Ignacio Mariscal, the foreign minister, said he was delighted to meet the man who had made Mexico one of the foremost of Latin-American countries, and he hoped for a continuance of the good results arising from the cordial relations between the United States and Mexico. President Diaz, in reply, said Mr. Root's zealous work for a better understanding between the United States and Latin-America was well known and appreciated, and he welcomed the secretary in the name of the American nation. Mr. Root was then presented to each member of the cabinet.

Woman Beaten to Death.

New York, Oct. 2.—So cautiously that fellow lodgers were not disturbed, a young woman was beaten to death in the furnished room house at 431 East One Hundred and Eighteenth street early Tuesday. At noon a man who, with the woman, had occupied the room since last Friday left the house, lingered for a few moments in the street in front and then walked leisurely away. He did not return.

$60,000 OUTFIT FOR SHABBY MISS LIBERTY

NEW YORK.—Miss Liberty of Bed-loe's island served notice a short time since that the inside fortification wall surrounding her really must be graded and filled, and the same must be done for the exterior walls, steps and wharf if she was expected to stand perpetually on the island. So James H. Ferguson of this city has got the contract to do this, getting $14,145 for the first job and $2,045 for the second. Then Miss Liberty gets new footgear, the McFarlane-Barton company having agreed to furnish the pedestal with a granite facing to the outside steps, the tunnels and terrace
for $22,400.

The pedestal is to be repaired and the interior of the lady put in shape for $7,800, while a new bronze dress will cost $1,800.

Then an elevator concern is to install a fast elevator to run through Miss Liberty's huge right arm for $10,000, and a spiral stairway to her shoulders. Miss Liberty is not sure that she will like that. Dear me!
When they construct spiral stairways inside one, with cars and things, what

WEST POINT hotel, that historic landmark on the Hudson, will disappear before long, and in another part of the reservation of the United States Military academy the government is to erect a $250,000 hostelry.

Every convenience will be used in the new structure. It is to have a frontage of 180 feet and a depth of 80, and is to contain several hundred rooms. From its lobby those who abide beneath its roof will be able to have a view of the broad sweep of the Hudson, although the outlook will not be quite so picturesque as that from the veranda of the old hotel.

The present hotel is conducted along the same lines as it was when Jefferson Davis visited there and Rob-

"POSTAGE STAMP BIDDER" FAILS TO LAND BONDS

ABRAHAM WHITE, the bold and unique genius of Wall street, and known as the "original postage stamp bidder," has come to grief at last in his latest and most daring exploit in high finance. White tried to carry off the city's entire new $40,000,000 issue of bonds with a draft on a $25,000 corporation.

White, in behalf of his bond house,
the Abraham White Bond company, offered to take the entire $40,000,000
of bonds at prices ranging from 100.35 to 102.50. He deposited with his bid a draft instead of a certified check.

The draft was for $800,000 and was drawn on the Greater New York So-curity company, a corporation of which he is supposed to be the sole active member, and which does not figure in the directory of the building where it is located. This concern is capitalized at $25,000. It gave a printed acceptance of the draft, which thus bore a semblance to a certified check
for $800,000.

The draft was presented for payment through the Guardian Trust

THIS city is becoming more and more literary, and its taste for literature is steadily turning to the sorious books of science and history, to the classics, and away from works of current fiction. The evidence of this tendency is to be found in the returns of the circulation department of the New York public library, with its 40 old branches scattered throughout the city. Four years ago the number of volumes given out by this department reached a total of 3,332,725; this year the number will approximate 5, 500,000, an increase that is unparalleled in the history of any library in the world. During these four years 17 branch libraries have been added to the public library system, a fact which explains in large measure the phenomenal increase in the circulation of volumes in so short a space of time.

Twenty years ago, before the formation of the New York public library, the number of volumes given out by
